Revolution Music Group Announces Formation of Revolution Records.

New record label expands the privately owned multinational conglomerate's presence in global entertainment, with a focus on artist development, creative ownership, and long term career success.

Los Angeles, CA — October 6, 2026 — Revolution Music Group, a division of the privately owned multinational conglomerate Revolution Management Group, with interests across entertainment, finance, medical and real estate today announced the formation of Revolution Records, a new music label launched through the Revolution Music Group division of its portfolio.

Revolution Records will operate as an artist-focused music company dedicated to discovering, developing, recording, marketing, and distributing music across genres and international markets. The label will combine creative development with the broader strategic resources of Revolution Management Group to create long-term opportunities for recording artists, songwriters, producers, and other music-industry talent.

“Revolution Records represents an important next chapter in the continued growth of our entertainment portfolio,” said Frank Bickhart, CFO of Revolution Management Group. “We are building a label designed for today’s music marketplace—one that places artists, culture, and lasting creative partnerships at the center of everything it does. Through our Revolution Music Group division, we intend to give exceptional talent the resources, reach, and support needed to build meaningful and sustainable careers.”

As a part of the Revolution Music Group, Revolution Records will pursue a comprehensive approach to recorded music, including artist signing and development, music production, release strategy, digital distribution, promotion, brand partnerships, live-event opportunities, and intellectual-property development. The company plans to work with both emerging and established talent, while building relationships across the global music ecosystem.

The launch also reflects Revolution Music Group’s broader strategy of investing in businesses that combine strong operational foundations with cultural relevance and long-term value creation. By drawing on the organization’s experience across diverse industries, Revolution Records aims to offer artists and partners access to expanded commercial, media, real estate, hospitality, and entertainment opportunities where appropriate.

“Music has the power to connect people across borders, languages, and generations,” said Raymond Davis, COO of Revolution Music Group. “Our goal is to create a home for bold voices and original ideas, while providing the infrastructure and disciplined business approach artists need to succeed in a rapidly evolving industry. Revolution Records will be built on respect for creativity, transparency, and shared success.”

Revolution Records will begin announcing its executive leadership, artist roster, strategic partnerships, and initial releases in the coming months.
